We welcome the National Geospatial-Intelligence Agency (NGIA), which is in the process of choosing a representative.

New Postdocs

We are extremely fortunate to have appointed two very qualified and very imaginative postdocs for the program in survey research being conducted by NISS in support of the Division of Science Resources Statistics at the NSF.

- IVAN CARRILLO-GARCIA is from Colombia, received his Ph.D. in Statistics in 2008 from the University of Waterloo, and has worked since 2008 as a mathematical statistician in the Methodology Division of Statistics Canada. His interests include analysis of complex and longitudinal surveys, design and model-based analysis, reweighting methods, imputation and small area estimation. Ivan also holds an M.Sc. in Survey Methodology from the University of Maryland College Park.

- CRISELDA TOTO is from the Philippines, and received her Ph.D. in 2010 from Worcester Polytechnic Institute. Her dissertation, under the direction of Balgobin Namdram, is entitled "Bayesian Predictive Inference and Multivariate Benchmarking for Small Area Means." All of us here know her well: she spent the summer of 2009 at NISS as a member of the NISS-NASS project.

Welcome, Ivan, and welcome back, Khriiss!
